There was another important factor that entered into the decision to force the withdrawal of the enemy from the Argonne. This advance of the French Seventeenth corps deprived the enemy of many important observation points and battery positions. The main purpose of the attack, however, was to increase the fighting front of the army and thus engage and consume the maximum number of German divisions. Although the continued operation of these two divisions was attended by severe fighting the results were immediate. The enemy was forced to withdraw from that region, the Argonne forest was cleared, and the Seventy-seventh division was enabled to advance to the relief of its "Lost Battalion." The narrowness of the ridge east of and parallel to the Meuse river and the difficulty of the terrain limited the number of troops that could be employed there. On the front of the First corps (Liggett) the opposition encountered on the 10th was less determined, and the Eighty-second division (Duncan) by midnight had established its line beyond Marcq, while the line of the Seventy-seventh division (Alexander) ran westward from there. On the 11th, however, the fighting was severe, yet the Eighty-second, regardless of heavy casualties, advanced to a position north of Sommerance. This town, though in the sector of the First division, was occupied by the Eighty-second to protect its own flank.

While these operations on our first army front were in progress, the thirtieth division of the second corps (Read) attacked October 8 as part of the British fourth army, aiding materially in the general advance of that army. The attack, although meeting considerable opposition, was successful, and the progress continued three days. When relieved the night of the 11th, the thirtieth division had driven the enemy back seven miles and had reached the Selle river.

In the series of attacks which began October 7 and continued up to the 12th, the enemy contested every inch of ground, and much close fighting occurred. Our troops were engaged in some of the most difficult and bitter fighting on the western front, advancing through dense woods, over hills and across deep ravines against the Germans holding on to this vital sector, with a skill equalled only by that of the French in their defense of Verdun in 1916. Yet all our corps advanced their lines, the fifth capturing elements of the Hindenburg line, which our troops were now facing.

The present make-up of the federal farm board leaves the south practically without representation, there not now heing a member of the summan heart. It isn't considered good form to weep, to act impulsively or to get on fire once in a while. All such emotions must be smothered. The unwritten law requires it. The danger is that a lot of other things, may be smothered at the same time and that we turn out to be a cruel race characterized by a heartlessness, a lack of feeling, typified in the callous disregard for human life in the present crime waves seeping our great cities.

Killing of Prisoners at Joliet Termed Slaughter by Witnesses.

JOLIET, Ill., March 22.—(P)—The killing of three escaped convicts at the state penitentiary here February 22, was described as "needless slaughter" by Representative Michael Igoe during a stormy session of the legislative inquiry today into prison conditions.

The denunciation came during the questioning of Captain George Erickson, one of the guards involved in the shooting. The legislator brought out that the guards had known for as long as three weeks that the escape was planned and who was involved, yet gave the convicts no warning.

He recalled the testimony of Captain D. A. Davenport, another guard, and quoted him as saying that the first word that came from the ambushed guards as the convicts cleared the prison walls was:

"Get ready—here they come!"
Erickson testified that only three guards took part in the shooting and that rifles were used.

"Would it surprise you to know,"
Igoe continued, "that there were 10 or 12 bullets in the body of each man bushed; and the classified sections of our telephone directories just as the doctors, the lawyers and the druggists are. "And would it surprise you to know that Davenport testified that he fired no shots at all? That would leave your two men to five the entire 40 bullets—with only rifles. Do you still say you had no machine guns to mow down these men?"

"We used only rifles," the captain maintained.

After Erickson's admission that they knew in advance of the escape plan, he was asked:

"And wouldn't it have been closer to the dictates of humanity to have warned them that if they tried to escape they would be killed instead of waiting for them down?"

"Well, if we warned them again and again they would just postpone the escape until later," Erickson replied.

At this point a bitter dispute broke out among members of the committee when Representative Roger Little, chairman, suggested that newspapermen be barred from the hearing.

Representatives Igoe and Rankin, democratic members, threatened to resign if any such course were pursued.

"It is all right for the committee to have a secret session to determine some course of action," Igoe said, "but when they question anyone connected with the prison it immediately becomes public business and we have no right to keep it from the press."

Tammany feels, as its leaders are said to have pointed out to the governor, that he is in office by grace of the Tiger's support. Therefore it is suggested that if he really desires the backing of New York's delegation to the next national convention, it would be well for him to put the brakes on further investigations of James J. be well for him to put the brakes on further investigations of James J. Another answer is due tomorrow.

Will Roosevelt find that the charges

Evangelist Massee 'Entirely Out of Sympathy' With Statement.

Another shot in the verbal battle now raging in church circles throughout the United States on the birth control question was fired by Dr. J. C. Massee, evangelist, at the Baptist Tabernacle Sunday morning, when the speaker took occasion to announce his position as entirely out of sympathy with the pronouncement favoring contraceptive measures published Saturday by the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America.

"For some years," Dr. Massee declared, "I have been out of sympathy with almost every statement the Federal Council of Churches has made on any subject they have given public utterance to. I am particularly out of sympathy with their statement regarding birth control. I believe in large families. I was the last of my mother's 13 children, was born on Friday the 13th, and have been having a good time ever since. The only grounds upon which I can excuse the statement of these blind leaders on this subject is shat they lack that wisdom which comes with the experience of spiritual regeneration. I shall have more to say on this subject later."

Dr. Massee's rémarks on birth control preceded his announced sermon of the morning on "Casting Out Devils." Morning and evening services inaugurated the revival campaign announced for several months, and were in charge of Dr. Massee and his agreat deal about his flute-playing in a sesociate, the Rev. ## CHANNEL MARKERS

IN THE earlier days of this country, spending the family budget used to be a hazardous business. It was only by harsh experience that a householder learned to steer clear of bad bargains and come into port with his money's worth.

There were snags and shoals aplenty. Inferior goods and unscrupulous merchandising methods made the channel dangerous. "Let the buyer beware" was an accepted slogan of trade.

Fortunately for millions of consumers, this condition has wholly changed in more recent years. The channel has been charted. Today advertised, trademarked goods of known value are for sale in every city and hamlet. The buyer knows he can trust such products. He reads the advertisements in his paper, chooses the commodities he needs, and makes his purchases with the knowledge that he will get full value for his outlay.

The advertising columns of The Constitution point the way to satisfaction. If you make it a habit to read them daily you will save money, and save time.

OGLETHORPE PLAYERS REHEARSE FOR PETREL FOLLIES

Earl Blackwell To Direct Fifth Annual Production

The 1931 edition of the Petrel Follies will begin rehearsals this evening at the Piedmont Driving Club under the direction of Earl Blackwell, president and director of the Oglethorpe Players' Club. The show this year, which will be given at the Erlanger theater the latter part of April, will consist of 21 scenes and include a cast of over 75 members of Atlanta's young college set. The music for the production will be furnished by the Oglethorpe orchestra under the direction of Jeff McMillian.

Earl Blackwell originated the Petrel Follies of Oglethorpe University in 1927, and since then has devised and directed each of the productions. Having recently returned from a trip abroad, Mr. Blackwell has accumulated some very spectacular and elaborate ideas that he will use in the new edition of the Follies. This evening the cast will assemble at the Piedmont Driving Club where the plot will be outlined and a few assignments made. The chorus will be given instructions in new dance routines and various other details of organization will be discussed.

Art Is the Effort of the Imagination to Create the Things Which You May Touch and Taste and Revel In.

DEAR MISS CHATFIELD:

I am a young woman of twenty-eight, happily married, with two tiny girls.

Though we are far from rich, my husband makes a salary large enough to provide us with a comfortable home, a car, wholesome food, decent clothing and a part-time maid. The babies are healthy and happy little creatures. I, too, enjoy perfect health, and the husband is good and kind and devoted to me and the children.

Probably you will say that I should be perfectly happy, but here comes the rub. My unmarried girl friends tell me I was a fool to tie myself down to a husband and two babies, that I will lose all interest in clothes, in events of the world, in art, and music, and literature. In other words, in the worthwhile things. They say I am buried in the nursery with my mind occupied with cod-liver oil, spinach, measles, croun, etc.

Mr. and Mrs. George Simpson, of Burningham, Ala., were the recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. Starks, on Atlanta avenue.

Mrs. Fell'x McElroy will be hostess to the Professional and Business Club at their next meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Wynne and Mrs. Pet Arnett motored to West Professional control of the professional and Business Club at their next meeting.

I argue against them in this way: I have exchanged my interest in modish styles for women, for interest in checked gingham pinafores and little baby bonnets. I am more vitally interested in business conditions, in science, in new discoveries, since my husband is a part of a business and I am on the lookout for anything that will make a more comfortable and efficient bounds.

Surely there is as much art in trying to create an artistic home, with attractive surroundings, as there is in attending lectures and flinging gay studio parties. I may darn my stockings and hear good music; more than I heard when I was free to attend concerts. As for literature, in addition to reading with my husband I am looking forward to re-reading everything with the children. Mother Goose is their limit now but they will soon be ready for Grimm and Anderson.

When I tell my husband what my friends say he says they are jealous. Please do not think I am discontented. I am usually happy but on a rainy day when the children are naughty and noisy and I get tired amusing them I wonder if, after all, my friends are not right. Please write me something cheerful for those occasions.

GRATEFUL READER.

ANSWER:

Now take your telephone directory and see how many women of your acquaintance must be satisfied with less. Some have only one page, some two, some three, and some four, but those who have eight are rare indeed. If you could read some of the letters that come to my desk from the lonely and the neglected, from the hungry and the dejected, from the heart-sore and the rejected!

Years ago there appeared in a magazine a poem about a farmer's wife who spent her time bemoaning the fact that she had spent her life away from the swirling currents of people and events. She had never been anywhere or seen anything and age was coming on and it was too late to remedy the situation. She was heartsick with disappointment. Then one day she said to herself "What is this larger life that I yearn for? It couldn't be bigger than what I've seen. Love, marriage, birth, death. The cycle is complete." There is nothing more, to be sure, and the woman who knows these actually, lives, not in the world of imagination, but in the world of reality.

Art? What is art but the efforts of the imagination to create these very conceptions of things which you may touch and taste and revel in. Art is an embroidery on life, which indeed does make it beautiful and more valuable, but life may be lived successfully without art, so long as the warp and woof of it will stand the strain that we impose on it by discontents and strivings and strainings.

But the best is yet to come. There are the long lonely years of age against which you have fortified yourself. The time comes when art loses its tang, when eyes lose their vision, ears their hearing, and minds their clarity, but the time never comes when the heart ceases to yearn for love, when the parent doesn't reach out into the darkness of the oncoming night to touch the hand of the child of his flesh.

Displaying an irony of which life is full, here is the same instinct and the same gesture reversed. For in babyhood the child has reached out through the darkness to the parent, for the warm comfort, that could be found only in the parents' presence, and now when life comes to the close the wheel has turned completely over and the strength of maturity is the weakness of age. MADRID, March 22 .- (A)-For the first time since Primo De Rivera re oked constitutional guarantees in 1923, Spaniards today had a free press the right of free speech and as-sembly and protection from invasions of their homes without search war-

These guarantees were restored in a decree prepared by Premier Aznar, assigned by King Alfonso while he was in London recently and returned to the premier by air mail.

The people received the boon quietly and there was no outward indication that the old order had changed. This was the usual Sunday holiday but there were no newspapers and the effects of removal of press censorship were not immediately apparent.

The move is a preliminary to municipal and parliamentary elections which are to be held this spring and next summer.

"I see," said Redshoulder to Mrs. Redshoulder, "that our cousins, the Whitetails, have arrived. I wonder if they will nest here this year. They'll make it harder hunting for us if they do. They have the craziest idea about the proper place for a nest that I ever heard of."

"Do you mean because they build on the ground?" asked Mrs. Redshoulder. Redshoulder nodded. "That's it." he replied. "The idea of a member of the Hawk family building on the ground. Yet they always do. I shouldn't think they would have a minute of peace when they have babies there. When we leave our youngsters to hunt food for them we know they are fairly safe. Paris, a few years after the war, the Paris of the Ritz Bar and the smart hotels and restaurants, the Paris of amusing and modern apartments and their cocktail parties, held no such creed, for men talked and women did not seem to resent it; and London, in a minor degree, followed suit. Staire—attached to the British embassy there, after Madrid, unmarsuit. Staire—attached to the British embassy there, after Madrid, unmarried, wealthy, good looking in a powerful, rather hard way—was much sought after; and would have been extremely popular if he had had any use for popularity. Unfortunately for the women who wanted to marry him, he was more than difficult to entice to those same cocktail parties. Dinners of wealthy and pleasure-hunting foreigners appeared to bore him, and foreigners appeared to bore him, and he showed a disconcerting predilec-tion first for work, and secondly for the society of the corps diplomatique, the Faubourgs, and some only of the English and American residents—cer-

Those who had tried in vain to number him among their intimates accused him of intellectual snobbery, of narrow-mindedness, of conservatism carried to extremes; but Staire heeded not at all; he went his own way, indifferent to all that did not interest him, deeply loyal to his friends and secretly afire with ambition. He had great personal gifts and they would and should he used for the same end. He would be ambassador, and no person and no weakness and no affection should stand between himself and his goal.

For those of his friends who devoted their strength and their lives to passing pleasures he had a carcless outward tolerance, an inward contempt cold and biting; and the more inaccessible he made himself the happier he was. He liked women he had work.

As he afterwards realized he was probably insufferable in those early days, yet even then he was wise enough to hide within himself these opinions of the world around him; he could ignore or dismiss without any outward unpleasantness or inward superiority, for it was not superiority he fett. It was something more radically simple—the determination that refused to occupy his time with that which did not interest him, and the vision of his goal always before his eyes.

MIKE HALL RACES TO VICTORY IN AGUA CALIENTE HANDICAP

While contemplating ruefully the prospect of another week of food and lodging bills for 33 athletes, R. J. Spiller, chancellor of the Cracker exchequer, can derive some comfort for having set a sort of record for himself.

It safely can be said that no previous Cracker training squad ever had so many players of Southern league caliber on the roster the third week of practice. In seasons gone, the squad would have been pruned down ere

Two pretty fair ball clubs could be formed from the men now being housed and fed at the Imperial hotel. Only a tentative "Regular" outfit has been formed; the "Yannigans," classified today as the opposition for Reading in an exhibition game are not out of the picture. Only a baseball reporter could select the ultimate team now.

SUPPLY AND DEMAND.

One of the reasons for this plethora of talent is the fact that no satisfactory minor league connection has been arranged to which to send the surplus. Several deals are pending but none has been closed.

This situation caused by the collapse of the Sally,

"It is hard to give every man a fair chance to prove his ability in a short training session with such a large squad on hand," Manager Dobbs said yesterday. "I have an idea which ones are the best. But there is a grave danger of guessing wrong when so many good players are on hand. The exhibition game today against Reading will bring every one of the younger players into action; it will be a test game that will go far toward giving us a line on what they can do."

"It is needed, to settle their differences, and the fans who like elemental rough stuff will have plenty of opportunity to gratify their craving. day to win the wealthiest of all turf races, the $100,000 added Agua Caliente handicapy.

The 7-year-old entry of R. M. Eastman made a gallant stretch finish after running in last place for the first quarter mile. Beneath his flying hoofs, the track record fell and a new mark of 2:03 flat for the mile and a quarter was set.

The gelding was ridden by Steve O'Donnell, who rated his mount well. Mike Hall paid off at better than 9 to 1 odds.

OTHER PLACES.

The Choctaw was second, a neck behind the winner: Plucky Play was third. The favorite, Sun Beau, finished fifth in the 10-horse field.

Mike Hall started slowly after a quarter mile, he was running in last place—nine horses in front. But Jockey O'Donnell knew his mount and slowly Mike Hall began passing the others, one by one.

Then in a thrilling stretch drive the gelding mowed down in order the great Sun Beau, owned by Willis Sharpe Kilmer; the Audley Farms' The Choctaw and the Northway stables' Plucky Play.

When the race was over, Willie Moran, up on The Choctaw, charged he was fouled by the winner, but the stewards would not allow the claim.

Sun Beau, with Jockey Coltiletti up and the top weight of the field, carrying 129 pounds, suffered much interference in the first furlong.

WEIGHT HURTS.

He was in trouble again at the half mile, where he finally weaved through an opening and rushed to the front. He took the lead, hard pressed by The Choctaw, featherweight contestant, which packed 92 pounds.

Sun Beau could not stand the terrific pace coupled with the heavy load, and when within sight of victory he flattened out and Mike Hall, the good old horse which went to England last year but failed in two British classics, came through splendidly to take the pot of gold. WEIGHT HURTS.

The mile and a quarter triumph of Mike Hall brought $100,000 to his owner. Last year, Victorian won $98.400 on the first running of the wealthy event. It was Victorian's record of 2:03 1.5 that fell before Mike Hall today.

The Choctaw took $10,000 Plucky Play $5,000 and Alexander Pantages finished fourth for $2.500. Others finished as follows: Sun Beau, fifth: Ervast, sixth; Pigeon Hole, seventh; Caruso, eighth: Lady Broadcast, ninth, and Sandy Ford, tenth. THE PRICES.

Speeding Up. JUST at the time we were beginning to flop well behind Great Britain in nearly all speed tests, it remained for Gar Wood to hand us the in nearly all speed tests, it remained for Gar Wood to hand us the speed boat record in his Miss America IX.

A speedboat traveling at a pace beyond 102 miles an hour is something the ancient waters of the earth had never seen before. It was about time. The speed record for British flying is round 358 miles an hour. The best American flying record is around 261 miles an hour. Which means that the fastest British plane is nearly 100 miles an hour faster than any American plane. That's all. Just a slight difference of some 97 miles an hour. Campbell's automobile record, made in Florida recently, was many seconds faster than any mark America has set up.

And then Gar Wood moves into the picture with two records in one day in form of the picture with two records in one day a few games in which his team is a large difference between his two and one-half years and Cobb's 23 years. But the fact that a young ball player can get away at this pace is proof enough that he belongs. The 1931 campaign will be a big test for proximately the same clip through this next season there will be no lingering doubt as to where he belongs.

Penn's New Coach.

DEAR SIR: I thought you might be interested in some further comment on Harvey Harmon, Pennsylvania's new coach. As I worked in a few games in which his team played last year. I can at least add a little to what has been written.

First, as a coach, with only 15 men at Sewanee he made a fine showing against Alabama. L. S. U., and Rice, all strong teams. In the Rice game, with material much below the caliber of the Southern conference, he held a strong team. UP TO this March moment Chuck UP TO this March moment Chuck Klein of the Phillies has picked up the greatest two-year average for a young ball player in the dusty records of the game.

It will be interesting to see how the young star can handle this pace through another year. In two and one-half campaigns with Philadelphia he has collected a batting average of .369. He is the only ball player who has made 200 hits a year, totaling over 400 bases for two successive years. All in all he has already cracked five or six old records and he is only starting. On the fielding side he holds the record for outfield assists made in one year. Young Klein is the greatest find of the last ten years. He is one of the few who may soon step in to recall proposers of Cobb and Speaker and much below the caliber of the South-ern conference, he held a strong team scoreless through three periods. This was against one of the strongest teams Rice had in years and only the reserves beat him in the final quarter.

reserves beat him in the final quarter.

They play clean, hard football in the southwest but Jack Meagher told me the Sewance team had played the cleanest and most sportsmanlike game of football his team had ever met. I am certain that Harmon will be a big athletic asset to Penn.

The boys will put out all they have for him on account of his pleasing personality. He knows modern football up to the last notch. Pennsylvania will not have to worry over any coming flop.

TARZAN, LORD OF THE JUNGLE No. 37

"Food and drink thou shalt have here at once," said Sir Richard. "No one shall say of Richard Montmorency that he turned anyone away hungry, not even a spy." Arising, he clapped his hands and soon there entered a sleepy boy. "Thou art slow moving, Michel. Fetch a platter of mutton and a flagon of wine for me at once." The boy seemed rooted to the ground as he beheld Blake but soon hustled away as he was bid. EMPLOYMENT

UNEVEN ADVANCE

Easiness of Call Money Attributed to Operations of Treasury.

BY ALEXANDER HENDERSON.

NEW YORK, March 22.—(P)—As a whole the bond market made an irregular creeping advance last week. Although there was little sensational in the day to day trading there were several interesting developments outside of the market. Call money on Friday receded to 1 per cent, the lowest rate since June 1915. This easiness was regarded as an aftermath of the treasury operations at the beginning of the week, resulting in heavy government deposits after the collection of the quarterly installments of income taxes. These deposits increased the supply of call funds, thus emphasizing an existent abundance of money.

Considerable criticism has been voiced by democrats, and the third member, Senator Otis Glenn, republican, Illinois, has denied reports that President Hoover sought to deprive Wagner of the credit. Barkley, however, reiterated today that "resentment" against the action was based "on the ground that it was a piece of cheap politics undertaken by the administration in order to deflect credit for the Wagner unemploy-ment bills from their author." Barkley's statement said under the Rhode Island laws lobbyists for or against pending legislation must register with the secretary of state, and under the law the records of this offi-cial's office show five registrations by Felix Hebert "to lobby" for various measures. On two other dates the records were said to show him "employed" by other companies for "lobbying" purposes.

Barkley quoted a news dispatch to the effect that Hebert appeared less than a fortnight ago before the Vermont legislature in behalf of a Rhode Island insurance company.

On April 9, 1928, the Kentuckian said. "Felix Hebert registered as counsel for Garry C. House to lobby for passage of an act to incorporate 'Jesse M. Metcalf and others' as the Anchor Insurance Company." Metcalf is the other Rhode Island senator.
